Description:

About the Author Frank (Xiaofeng) Li is the Founder and President of W.E.I. (West-East International), a Chicago-based import & export company. Frank was born in Hangzhou, China, in 1959, and grew up in the horrible days of the Cultural Revolution. He was a hopeless teenager when China re-opened its universities in 1977, after closing them for more than a decade! He was lucky enough to have made into Class 77. Frank received his B.E. degree from Zhejiang University (China) in 1982, M.E. from the University of Tokyo in 1985, and Ph.D. from Vanderbilt University in 1988, all in Electrical Engineering. He worked for several companies all over the world until 2005, when he founded his own company W.E.I. Today, W.E.I. is a leader in the scale industry not only in products & services, but also in thought & action. Frank started writing about business and politics in 2008.

Since May 2011, he has been a weekly columnist at Global Economic Intersection. He writes extensively and uniquely about American politics, for which he has been called a “modern-day Thomas Jefferson.”
